

Corona News 08/08/2021

Well, a short time ago Carsten Linnemann, federal chairman of the medium-sized and economic union CDU / CSU and member of the Bundestag for the CDU, said that the generous social policy in matters of Corona must now come to an end, and that the money cannot be poured out with a watering can. And now it is known that his CDU friend Altmaier, whom he likes to praise for his work in the Bundestag, wants to extend the so-called bridging aid for companies beyond September 2021, namely until December 31, 2021. But possibly even longer. In addition, there has recently been a so-called restart bonus, which companies also receive when they bring back staff from short-time work or new hires. And this short-time working option will now also be extended until the end of 2021. Although everyone has now reopened and has long since started again. Quite the opposite: Allegedly, catering establishments cannot find enough staff because after such a long time they are no longer available as mini-jobbers and have oriented themselves differently. Doesn't really fit in with Linnemann's statements, but we already know that: If a company, its clientele, receive support, that's okay, but he doesn't think that's okay with payments to employees.

And because the companies are doing so badly, some chains have now joined in to support the federal government's desperate vaccination appeal, which is now being advertised with campaigns of millions and stupid gifts for spontaneous vaccinations. In addition to the well-known sausages in Thuringia, butchers are now known who give away certain goods, according to Mr. Heil at Markus Lanz. Or an amusement park that offers 3 free rides - after the vaccination, of course. In addition to Aldi, Edeka, Lidl, Thalia, Media Markt, Kaufland should also be involved in this campaign. Posters and notices in shop windows and checkout areas are intended to alert customers to the "Live instead of lockdown. Get vaccinated" point out. The vaccinations should then be able to take place in certain areas. However, vouchers or gifts as a special motivation are not provided.

While here in Germany the tone against the "bad" unvaccinated citizens is getting rougher and more and more reprisals are demanded through the back door in order to exert a compulsory vaccination, according to a newspaper report the CNN in the USA has started to recruit employees who are unvaccinated appearing to work, dismissed. This affected 3 employees who wanted to go back to work from their home office. A vaccination is mandatory for all employees, according to CNN Worldwide President Jeff Zucker. And there would be no room for maneuver. The employees still have time until October 2021 to get vaccinated and then have to return to their offices - vaccinated or no longer have a job.

It's not that far with us yet, but the voices that want to have something to say are getting louder and louder, such as: Mr. Lauterbach, who now wants to demand an expensive PCR test from the unvaccinated, and Mr. Brinkhaus, who comes along Slogans such as "Unvaccinated people limit the lives of those who have been vaccinated" propagated. Seriously, he talks about the poor vaccinated people taking on themselves to make appointments, going to two vaccinations and having accepted that their health was sometimes not well afterwards and that now they are angry because of the unvaccinated theirs Fundamental rights cannot be fully returned. I think Mr Brinkhaus is intentionally twisting the facts. But he is not alone in that. Kretschmann also threatens those who refuse to be vaccinated with inconvenience in the event of further refusal. If the incidence figures rise again in the fall, even negative tests may result in e.g. B. restaurants or cinemas cannot be entered. The event industry had already announced a similar approach.

Point 1: Not having received the unvaccinated Corona for 20 months shows how disciplined and meticulous all the regulations have been complied with. Obviously, those who have recovered, some of whom are also part of the group of vaccinated persons, did not do it so carefully. Point 2: Who is violating all the rules, celebrating without a mask, attending major events, demos, discos, parties and holidays abroad because of the newly won "immunity" against Corona? That's not what the unvaccinated people do, who don't want to be infected. And as a young person who has now been vaccinated said in an interview: I got vaccinated because I and my parents should be safe from Corona. They and others have no idea and believe that and that is how they behave. JUST the unvaccinated have to be more careful about being infected by the vaccinated, because they don't even know if they are carrying the virus, because there are usually no external symptoms, and then the viruses are spread. However, the unvaccinated do not carry on viruses because they do not have any. Mr. Brinkhaus should refresh his non-existent medical knowledge instead of his vaccination and not tell such shit. He should rather listen to the realities that run on the ticker every day: 3 employees of a Berlin corona vaccination center took part in an open air event and got infected and of course passed it on. Now everyone has to do a PCR test.

The CDC in the US relies on data from a place where 70% were already vaccinated. After festivals and hustle and bustle on the street and behavior when there was never Corona, the infection rate suddenly increased significantly. The result: Of around 470 infected people, 346 were already fully vaccinated. How is that possible? Meanwhile, the federal government is making things very easy for itself at the federal press conference: Instead of providing the citizens with transparent and factual information, as Seibert always claims, they prefer to be detailed and covered up: No, they do not comment on newspaper reports and studies, even then, if the American health authorities spread that. At the request of the well-known journalist Mr. Reitschuster, Ms. Demmer interferes, who simply ironed the whole thing off by saying, yes, one can assume that the federal government will take note of such news and possibly also check or follow up. Of course, I don't know anything. Because strange: Especially in the professional football scene, we know that they were the first to be constantly tested and then vaccinated, but during this time I keep coming across news that games are canceled because several players in a football club are infected and in quarantine again are. For example at Bremer SV, where the entire team was sent to quarantine. Two cases are also known at Borussia Dortmund, also in quarantine. The problem is obviously not the testing and vaccination of the players, but the willingness afterwards to adhere to certain rules and simply refrain from certain activities. What else do the unvaccinated do, otherwise they would be sick.

Speaking of the favorite topic of vaccination: In the city of Göttingen there is still the opportunity until August 14th to get vaccinated spontaneously, so to speak, at various locations in the city. Everything that is there is vaccinated: Moderna and Johnson & Johnson. And the US recently announced that it does not want to allow unvaccinated persons to enter the country, for the time being this decision is unlimited. And there is also a new data protection mishap to report: As the Pirate Party Germany reports, one of the biggest mishaps has occurred in the Essen vaccination center. Actually, around 700 people were supposed to be informed about postponements of appointments and opening times of the vaccination center by email, but at the same time they received an Excel file from over 13,000 people who had already been tested with all the relevant data such as name, address, date of birth and telephone number, email address and vaccination data. Great.

And instead of always talking about the fact that the free citizen tests will soon be discontinued because tests now amount to billions and yes everyone can be vaccinated and whoever does not accept that should pay for the test himself, Spahn should answer why after various scams and Waste of money in the corona pandemic, I have reported about it often enough, that vaccinators and helpers are paid disproportionately, that it is a real gold mine to vaccinate. Then he and his ministry slept properly again. Because as an assistant doctor reports in a contribution on BR television, the payment would be GIGANTIC. You would get 100 euros per hour! and do this as a part-time job on the weekend. In March she earned a whopping 15,600 euros for 156 hours. In the meantime, as is well known, it has become less, for example only around 50 hours in May, when she only got just under 5000 euros. At least she is honest: She put aside her bad conscience because of the high pay and said to herself: It's just the way it is. She is right. If the state is stupid enough to pay that much money, it has the right to take it with her. Most entrepreneurs and especially many politicians do it too - and various of them do so without the corresponding work performance.

Interesting in this context is the attitude of Lower Saxony's Minister of Health Daniela Behrens to the assessments and assessments of the STIKO, who have not yet issued an unqualified vaccination recommendation for 12-17 year olds. For good reason. But she sees it very differently, Lower Saxony will stick to the vaccination recommendation for children and adolescents from 12 years. It also rejects inappropriate political interference criticized by the STIKO. Oh, what does politics and you yourself do? Of course, politicians and they interfere in the work of STIKO and simply ignore the decisions. Ms. Behrens has no particular proven health knowledge. In addition to public relations and journalism, she worked as a department head in the Federal Ministry for Family, Seniors, Women and Youth from 2019-2021 and only became Minister for Social Affairs, Health and Equality in Lower Saxony in March 2021. So she has as much or little idea as any normal citizen. But there have always been politicians who overestimated themselves.

And finally, I have another report of a special kind. One concerns a message from France that you can only hold your head on. More and more young French are obviously doing everything they can to get infected with Corona so that they can recover afterwards and get all rights back. They probably haven't noticed that more and more young people have to go to intensive care units.
