

Corona News Why Corona spreads without unvaccinated people 08/22/2021

Today I would like to open my Corona report with 2 original stories that do not make me wonder why the corona numbers are rising again. Certainly, 2 individual examples, but they are repeated hundreds of times in this or a similar form in Germany, I'm sure of that.

In case 1 it goes in Heike B; that's what I call her. Heike visited her demented mother in a nursing home in Frankfurt on Friday, she lives in Hanover herself. So by train to the nursing home, she and her mother have not yet been vaccinated, so she had to write a text in the nursing home and wait for the result. After a negative result, she was allowed to see her mother. After a 2-hour stay, she is then back to Hanover by train. Due to the many train delays and also on Friday afternoon, the trains were well filled. On Saturday morning she has a sore throat and feels limp. She wants to take another test and books an appointment for her lunch break from work; she works in a retail store in Hanover. But the surprise: no tests are done with "possible" corona symptoms, she is advised to see a doctor. But where to get a practicing doctor on Saturday. Since the symptoms are not particularly severe, Heike B decides to get over the working day and wait for the weekend to see a doctor on Monday if it gets worse. After her work shift, she takes the tram home for around 20 minutes. If Heike B. really got the virus through her activities the day before, she may have infected various people because she was refused the test. The good intention was ruined. And there are enough people who do not even visit a doctor or test center, but first try to combat the whole thing at home.

Case 2: As we all know, the incidence values have meanwhile risen again to over 50 on a national average, which means that regional restrictions on group meetings will once again take effect, both in terms of the maximum number and number of households. Here in Göttingen it is currently 10/10 outside and inside. So 10 households with a maximum of 10 people. It's actually easy to understand. In this case you have to know that last year in Göttingen 2 problem areas, Groner Landstrasse and Maschmühlenweg, certain large rental houses were noticed, high proportion of foreigners, high infection rates. It was even reported on television at the time. And today, a year later: Everything is as always, today over 30 people with umpteen children playing, sitting, discussing or chilling on and around the parking lot behind the house, sitting together or standing, without a mask, without any distance. And the public order office and the police: They know that, but are glad that nobody reports and they don't have to move out. Because nobody wants to get involved in these problem areas. Because 30 quickly becomes 50 and more, a police car then quickly becomes 4 or 5. I know that, and they too. Sad but true. Best options for Corona.

2 examples out of many. Everyone knows that. Everyone knows that. But nobody cares. We remember: The great waterproof hygiene concept for the European Football Championship. Everything is great, everything is safe, no Germans come to London etc. etc. Comprehensive security concepts blah blah blah. And now, oh wonder, it is reported that thousands of people have been infected during the games and that the same amount has already entered the stadium infected. I ask myself: What is this reporting about? All responsible media and visitors knew that beforehand. No tests for fully vaccinated people, and they bring the infections with them and nobody knows that. I don't feel like spreading the topic again and again, but in view of this strange reporting by some media I want to say: How stupid are those responsible or how stupid they think they are the citizens to pretend that nothing happens with such a large amount? They knew that very well but wanted to collect their money.

They have nothing to do with the consequences. If I then get the information that the visitors could indicate whether their self-test turned out negative, I will definitely know. Who goes up to the stadium and says: I'm coming because my test is positive? Nobody can seriously believe such nonsense. Everyone who wanted to see the game said, of course, test negative.

And it was no different at the Tokyo Olympics. Already on the first day the first exclusions due to infection, hundreds of them were officially in the course of the games. And now we are hearing the same shit again as last year: It is also the people who return to travel that are to blame for the increasing incidence. And ? Everyone knew beforehand that it would happen again like last year, it was planned by politicians, what are they actually getting upset about? We wanted to give back the freedoms, this also includes the freedom to get Corona. And now the big surprise: At the para-Olympic Games in Tokyo, which are currently running, there are already the first corona cases. No, how surprising. I am slowly getting the impression that the first long-term side effects of vaccinations seem to be the restriction of brain functions, which I have already reported on.

But something is different this year despite the increasing numbers: Nobody really cares. Because 50% or more are completely vaccinated, and even if the third vaccination starts next month, which Spahn would like to have for everyone (why?), Incidences do not matter as long as we have enough intensive care beds in the hospitals. But the fact that the number of beds has no meaningful statement or measured value for admitting higher incidence values is something that very few people buckle up. And why ? Because Germany in particular, and Germany as the front runner, does not have the problem of having too few intensive care beds with ventilators, but too few staff to be able to care for the ventilated patients accordingly. According to a doctor who told me, these have to be rotated regularly, for example. And it is precisely because of the inadequate supply of ventilation patients in Germany that the rate of dying people in Germany is said to be so high. I have already reported on this, the quota in Germany is around 50%. Why ? Significantly lower in other countries. Who explains that? None. So what use are the intensive care beds with enough ventilators if the patients die away, and this value is now included as a positive value in the pandemic in favor of freedoms for vaccinated people. A real perversion.

In addition, there is the realization that despite the long pandemic, which hopefully should have undergone a corresponding permanent improvement / increase in both personnel and function in the health authorities, is just wrong, because the states and the federal government have not learned anything. They show this and talk impressively to everyone on all occasions every day. Why am i saying this? Because there is again talk of the fact that the health authorities can no longer track the chains of infections. How do I know this sentence and when was it coined so often? Seriously, I grasp everyone's head.

While Ms. Merkel treats herself to a tour of the Biontech plant in Germany and talks with other guests and secretly promises the Biontech managing director a promotion for Africa in which she wants to play an important role, Mr. Lauterbach doesn't find any so benevolent ones on his favorite Twitter account Words about Biontech. He not only expects an increase in the so-called vaccination breakthroughs, but also a rapid decrease in the Biontech vaccine against renewed infection. The protection against severe courses would be longer, but that does not apply to high-risk patients, he said. He sees an urgent renewed vaccination for this group of people announced this year. Well, there was no talk of that at Ms. Merkel's visit, just words of praise and further pledges of support. Okay, Ms. Merkel is not a virologist, not an expert, sometimes she just pretends, I understand that. Speaking of vaccination breakthroughs. Weeks ago practically no issue, now it is said that every 10th patient is ill again despite being vaccinated, according to the assumptions and test results.

And that's why I want to give special praise here in Germany to a clinic that is a big exception: The Dietrich Bonhoeffer Clinic in Neubrandenburg also requires visitors who have been completely vaccinated and recovered to pass a negative rapid test, they are also aware of the dangers of infection. Vaccinated fully conscious. It should be a role model for Germany. Incidentally, the RKI reports more than 10,000 vaccination breakthroughs with a further increase in the number here too. That is why Mr. Lindner should not swing such full-flow election campaign speeches, but rather deal with the realities, because of no more masks for vaccinated and convalescents. Sounds like a contagion free letter for this group of people.

What I recently read from a 24 year old after his second successful vaccination as a post on TikTok: He has now been vaccinated twice and feels like Hulk. When I got him back to the bottom of the facts, about Hulk, he could get infected again at any time, his answer: He feels particularly well-armed against smart shit. My answer to this: Imagination does not help against infection. After that no more mail came. And that is obviously the level of knowledge of many young people. Vaccinated twice and immune forever to all coronaviruses. New messages from the Paul Ehrlich Institute meanwhile indicate that young people between the ages of 12 and 17 will also develop heart muscle inflammation after the vaccination. But there are only a few. But what are 24 dead because of Corona if 50 refugees drown in the Mediterranean. This is reported all day long, I just have to mention that. Why have this young group of people been vaccinated so massively for a short time: Not because we suddenly have a new study, because the vaccine is different, no, the STIKO suddenly advocated new knowledge and the vaccination due to sudden new knowledge. You don't believe anybody, of course, because nobody has listened to the STIKO for weeks anyway, the vaccinations were more or less approved by politicians and declared to be sensible, what does an institution want to do if it is ignored? Just join in so that you are back.

Finally, a few highlights in terms of Corona. We remember and, big complaints from companies, self-employed people and owners, how bad it would go through the lockdowns, then complaining about late payments of aid, etc. etc. But some of them, and quite a few, can be very running and impressive whine, but also cheat. But they don't talk about it: in Lower Saxony alone, over 1,600 proceedings were initiated by the public prosecutor's office by the end of June 2021, of which almost 500 penal orders were issued, and over 200 proceedings have already been legally concluded. The damage is said to be around 14 million euros, as I said, ONLY in Lower Saxony.

At the moment we are in full swing with the news, combats and new rumors that crop up every day about the India variant, which is so quickly contagious and also permanently worsens the vaccination result, a new variant is being discussed from the USA. Hardly to be read in the media, it has already been proven in Germany. What is known about the new variant is nothing. Just guesswork, more contagious, less vaccine effect. Anyone can make these assumptions. Nobody knows nothing, so wait and see, we will find out enough about it.

And on the subject that the unvaccinated are the bad ones, who are the basis for the renewed flare-up of the incidences, has now also been refuted, to the shame of the politicians, virologists and other would-be experts who have always said so. On the one hand, we have already learned how nice the spread was at events like the European Championship or the Olympics, of course that will continue nicely in this country at the next football or WasWeißlich events, but also the returning travelers and travelers contribute to this increase in abundance.

One thing is clear: Many of the travelers are vaccinated and not only feel in a good mood, like various company owners, they are not too bad to simply bypass the control functions of the Federal Police. Few seem to take this seriously. Believe it or not, over 150,000 violations of entry obligations from risk areas have been registered with the responsible authorities. 80% of these are not air travel. This is often about missing or incorrect information. Great attitude. Thank you on behalf of all the unvaccinated people who meticulously adhered to all the rules for 19 months, were not sick and now have to endure the stupidities of some groups of people to their health damage.

Wait a minute, I remember another important question: Millions of vaccine doses have been given away to other countries for weeks. Why? It is said that the third vaccinations will start at the beginning of September. So we give away vaccines to all countries of the world so that we can buy them back from the manufacturer, or how should I understand that? And I would like to add something else: Feeling like a Hulk doesn't mean being as intelligent as Einstein. In this sense.
