I can no longer hear this stupid front-end calculator, how many per thousand of the general population have died or are sick. To explain the harmlessness of Corona in this way shows completely different problems, but not of Corona, that is correct. Just a few days ago, the responsible district manager at Markus Lanz reported how narrow-minded and cheeky the celebrating Mischpoke appeared to the security forces and the police when they wanted to evacuate the location and enforced it. In view of the extremely rising numbers, however, one must now also ask in Germany whether the politicians want to stick to their "we have to adhere to the AHA rule" and that's it and accept that 10% of the population, the percentage continues to rise that still doesn't care and won't care, or whether tough measures will follow before everything escalates. These prayer-wheel-like appeals to the population that they should stick to them now just miss the ass for some. They just have to curve through the world, party until they drop and express their displeasure without a mask or distance. Even in these times experienced in a Göttingen kebab shop. While I am waiting for my meal in the shop with a mask on, two young men come into the shop one after the other, without a mask or distance, one of them goes in immediately and wants to place an order. The owner explains the mask requirement whereupon he says: I have a certificate, but cannot show one. The other one stays in the open door frame the whole time and is busy talking to one of the employees in the shop, whom he obviously knows. When they are both gone, a group of 4 young people comes who obviously want to go into the shop, ALL are not wearing a mask when they see me in the shop, they complain and wait outside until I have left. What did they do after that?

And the latest news from today 4:02 p.m.: Again Corona is in the well-known TV residential complex Groner Landstr. broke out, different families are affected and those affected are already in quarantine. And again the city gives me a riddle: Why do the residents of this residential complex get free food / alcohol and drug deliveries, paid for and delivered by the city of Göttingen, why are they even offered to move to other apartments with free accommodation and care? Interpreters, test station right in front of the house, everything to mother these people, what is the background behind it; Unfortunately, we cannot ask Koehler because he is himself in quarantine. And outside of Göttingen: People cart around in a river cruise ship, 13 of 145 passengers are now sick; currently. Big wedding in Saarland, Großrosseln; 230 guests must be in quarantine. Fetish party in Berlin, 600 participants, tests and results are still pending, after the dissolution the guests stand crowded in front of the entrance door and wait - probably for the Corona - transmission, because everyone wants to take a souvenir with them, maybe to the grave. Again a lateral thinker demo with 1100 participants in Dortmund, many without a mask. And many with alleged certificates, including forgeries. It is sad that these people are now partially using forged certificates to gain freedom from masks. 2000 people in a demo in Berlin Mitte against corona requirements. Also no distance, almost no mask. And that of all places in the hotspot Berlin. The same in Cologne with a few hundred people without a rule. The demo was broken up by the police.

The list of massive CONSCIOUS violations could still be pages long. The fact is: THEY will never adhere to it, unless there are severe penalties, but the German political responsibility is not capable of doing that. And then there are the outbreaks in companies and institutions, such as in a Laichingen retirement home, 62 people, residents and employees, are sick. 4 seniors have already died. Doesn't really interest anyone, happens. And when tougher measures are taken, some people, meanwhile already pupils, always feel restricted in their freedom and complain against every rule. I seriously ask myself how a schoolgirl can complain. Hardly with her pocket money; WE, the general public, are probably paying. In any case, it would be typically German, as was the compulsion to complain.

We are on this path, and you really have to ask Mr. Weil and Co. what it is all about to allow 96,9,800 viewers live at the Hannover football game, of which only 7,500 came, where Hannover has long since exceeded the 50 limit and is a risk area is. Could it be that he, like his prime minister colleagues and also the Chancellor and Co., have long since become business puppets and lobbyists? Right, that's the way it is. The massive pressure on politics will not decrease either, on the contrary. And then there are people like Mr. Baum, managing director of the German Hospital Association, who downplay the whole thing by talking about the fact that 8,000 intensive care beds are still free in Germany and 10,000 could be added within 7 days. But Mr. Baum learned by heart from the DIVI Intensive Register website, currently at 5 p.m. today we have 579 Corona ventilation cases, 20,884 intensive care beds are occupied, 8401 free. And now the exciting number, which he of course kept secret: But they are only 29,825 intensive care beds can be used, even if theoretically 12,718 beds can still be made available within 7 days. The reason: There aren't enough staff to maintain these beds, because the ventilators and everything related to them are highly complex devices that only a few people can and are allowed to operate. He probably forgot when he testified on NDR Info Radio. Is anyone actually still able to provide serious information to the population, either intentionally or unintentionally? But because politics assess the situation in Germany to be harmless and controllable, more and more health authorities unfortunately not, but who cares, Germany is bringing more and more sick people from all over the EU countries here, we have the beds, the staff, that Money, etc. Dummd Deutschland sends its regards.

And because the RKI is constantly bringing out new increases and Prof. Wieler speaks out in favor of expanded measures, the RKI building became the target of an arson attack. One should slowly ask oneself how long this should go on. Even Söder, who is in favor of tough measures, finds the warning app from Germany rather ineffective. He calls her a toothless tiger, a flop. You can't say that the app has contributed to containment in any way, it's great that it now also works abroad, where 90% of all EU countries are red. Lauterbach, on the other hand, who has so far shone with good ideas, now has to listen to criticism: His latest idea because of Spahn, that one should test all cabinet members every 2-3 days, can probably not be serious. Pure waste of tests, high costs and nonsensical, that's how you can sum it up. What should all the retail workers say, who meet hundreds of customers every day? There is not a single test, unless you are already infected. But if you're second or third class, that's just the way it is.

While some are fighting with and against Corona, others are now busy uncovering and punishing the many frauds; Particularly with the generous summer aid, some pockets have been filled lavishly but unjustifiably. And only isolated cases are caught in the crowd, criticism of the payment modalities and lack of controls towards banks is growing. Wait a minute, loss of control, that sounds familiar; appears to be a chronic illness of the government and agencies. The first offenders have been convicted, and a mosque in Kreuzberg is currently being investigated in Berlin. While we are on the subject of money: in the meantime, some of those who were returning from summer vacation at the time have come to the point of suing the payments for the repatriations. And that on a very left-wing tour: only agree to share in the flight costs when you are safe, refuse. A completely new understanding of the law. Around 30 lawsuits are currently pending, but the number will continue to rise and the deadline is still running. There are many excuses, I don't want to mention any here, otherwise I will feel sick. I'm just saying: just let it sit next time. We can still have a "few nice days". I've had enough for today.
