

Corona News 05/30/2021 Diverse international news

I would like to start today internationally for reasons of diversity, and start with India and Argentina. There was and is still being pointed out in the media about the high incidence figures and infections, along with the message that there wasn't enough oxygen. And that's why the federal government had already sent relief supplies in the form of people and material plus funds to India weeks ago in order to help there. Recently, yesterday to be precise, there was an interesting report on India showing how the numbers exploded in early May. Basically, I have nothing against helping countries that are UNDERTAKEN and without any means of self-help to give JOINT help, not as Ms. Merkel basically does it alone a la Maaß and then explains: The EU sticks together and acts together. Pure nonsense. For this reason, which only happens by the way, because it fits so nicely, the EU is now in the process of adopting a regulation that basically allows everything to be decided without all states having to agree. So far, the unified resolution has been in place, either all or none, except for Germany, Merkel plays a special role. If some states have their way, the majority decision should come, and Germany wants that too. This is particularly beneficial for states that have precarious work situations or high debts, which can then pass laws for themselves.

Back to India. India, however, neither has these values through no fault of its own, nor is it a poor country. I can still remember when it was always said that there were many highly educated PC specialists from India who we need in Germany and who we have recruited. Neither through no fault of your own? Right, you just have to look at the celebrations and festivals around April 21, 2021, where hundreds of thousands of believers in India held their religious celebrations, closely together, no masks, nothing. The distance was based on physical contact, and that for several days. Huge crowds in a heap pretend that spring has to be heralded. And then from May 1st, the number of infections and deaths rose rapidly. What a miracle. And that is still rewarded by Germany.

If Germany really wanted help for poor countries, why didn't we help Argentina? Nobody talks about it, no NTV, Tagesschau24 or Welt Online. No Ms. Merkel, Seibert and everyone who goes with them. Because there the incidence value has just fallen from over 500 to a fabulous 482. The infection rate is almost 9%. In India, the incidence value is 99 and the infection rate is 2%. But nobody cares, because India has completely different interests at play.

We come to Austria. In the middle of the week there was a mishap, a mess that topped German mishaps: of all people, a doctor in Austria used a syringe several times to vaccinate. How the whole thing came out and how many people were vaccinated with the same syringe is still unclear. But she took a look at Baerbock; that too should only have been an accident. No, eat clear. The doctor was released from duty.

While we are currently vaccinating and still internationally, let's go to the USA. They have now found a way to convince citizens who have refused to vaccinate to get vaccinated very quickly. There is not only a lottery for high prizes in the millions, but z. B. to win scholarships. There is currently talk of $ 1 million and 30 prizes of $ 10,000 each. In addition, there are internal bonus payments. B. in hospitals of up to $ 750, Amazon is supposed to pay $ 100 if vaccination is proven, other companies pay smaller amounts, but give extra vacation days. They probably think of the side effects and the courier times before you get a yellow ticket, rather free vacation days.

In any case, this campaign was well received and certainly at least a better step than with us, where Mr. Spahn does not motivate anyone with announcements that everyone would get corona sooner or later without vaccination. Where I'm with Mr. Spahn; he is currently traveling around South Africa or all of Africa. France invited Mr. Spahn to South Africa. How come ? NTV speaks of a remarkable alliance on foreign soil. Nobody can say what the incidence figures are.

Dear NTV moderator, just have a look on the Internet, then you will be better informed. The corona virus should be contained. It is also urgently needed, with an incidence of 45. The number of infections and deaths are 60% BELOW those of Germany. Very dramatic. Spahn has to do something about that. We already have him there, like Maass. Lots of money, good-sounding speeches and promises for the next few years. As always. The best for last: The motto of the campaign is: France is kicking off, Germany is leading it is called in the division of labor. Wait a minute, I'll explain: France invites you, Germany pays. Now some may understand better.

Speaking of France. There, what has only now become known, a miracle healing took place. Or citizens have disappeared. Unfortunately, I cannot explain this phenomenon, but I can determine exactly when it happened. Since I record the incidence and death figures for France, among others, every day. And what is that ? On May 19, France had almost 6 million infected people in the statistics, then only 5.7 million in the statistics on May 20, and 300,000 infected people have not come back, not to this day. Although they were there for weeks. Where did they go? Can someone help ? Then please email me.

Let's come to Germany. Mr. Scheuer has once again initiated an idea. He's always great at that. Vaccinated persons should now also be allowed to re-enter from non-EU countries, i.e. to Germany. It doesn't matter what other EU countries do. He is talking about a coordinated approach at EU level, but he is pushing ahead himself. That is coordination a la Scheuer. In Germany, no procedure has yet been agreed on in this matter, not even which vaccinations are recognized, what is done with first-time vaccinated people, etc. Not Scheuers problem, because others can rack their brains while the problems hit us.

Now the Biontech vaccine for 12-15 year olds has also been approved by the EMA, the EU Commission has yet to approve, of course a matter of form. Likewise, the approval in Germany, a quick waving through is guaranteed. When testing, however, oh miracle, the federal government a la Spahn has now found an irregularity again. Some fitness studios, hairdressers and saunas and others open up, apply for approval for a test center, because you can earn good money with it and also have ideal chances of fraud when billing, and once again nobody knew, nobody thought. But who made the rules for running a test center? But probably Spahn. But in Germany everything is possible in times of Corona. So it is no surprise that a delivery van for furniture in Göttingen is quickly converted into a mobile test center by putting 2 tables and a chair in the loading area, plus 2 medical students or something and you can cash in under the guise of solidarity and helpfulness. At a total of 18 euros per test, that's also very good money. And as I said, checks on the payroll are nil. Even shimmer. Since, for reasons of data protection, no lists of people tested may be sent as evidence of the tests carried out, the number is simply sufficient as a report to the Association of Statutory Health Insurance Physicians, without any receipt, and the funds flow.

As a police commissioner said when investigating white-collar crime: Germany is an ideal immigration country for this. Data from the federal states are not even exchanged with one another. If it weren't so sad, one could easily laugh at the naivety of some ministers.

Vaccination is and will remain the TOP topic in Germany. Everyone is now hoping for the termination of the vaccination prioritization from June 7th, which Spahn announced in a downright solemn atmosphere. But the citizen can actually forget again. Because whether from June 7th at the family doctor instead of the previous 50 500 people want to have a vaccination, there are no more vaccination doses and the doctor does not have more capacity. Nor do they want to reserve vaccines for children's vaccinations, everything goes on. But where is it going? Braun, the head of the Chancellery, once again expressly states that the vaccination offer will not increase as a result of the clearance, but that the vaccination offer will be available to everyone by the summer and all those willing to vaccinate will have received the vaccinations by the end of September.

It's great. The quality product AstraZeneca, which is now once again falling into disrepute due to the latest studies: The vaccine should be contaminated, too many proteins should be in it. Proteins that should actually be removed before administration. SHOULD. AstraZeneca quickly spoke up: You couldn't produce such pure vaccine. Oh, but as a precaution nobody said it. And the German thoroughness, as propagated by Spahn, was also wrong. And that some of the proteins present have an unfavorable influence on the organism e.g. B. in terms of inflammatory response enhancements, is also not so important.

But Spahn already has the next positive news on his radar: Far-reaching easing for the summer is pending, but he wants to see an incidence value of 20. And he gets it too, the only interesting thing is that everyone is now claiming that we are vaccinating and testing very strongly now, which has a correspondingly positive effect on the incidence figures. Last year the numbers were absolutely in the basement, without testing and vaccination, that was still said: In summer the virus is practically inactive, so the numbers are in the basement in summer. But every summer is different, as the experts say. But he does issue a small warning: family visits by migrants in their home countries, extended trips abroad to certain countries can lead to increased numbers again. He wants to prevent that and make appointments with certain countries. But only with some. With which ? He only names Turkey. The week before last, Sylt restaurants showed how beautifully stupid the new freedom can be: Several infections and outbreaks of Corona, which, it is said, raise doubts about the opening concept of the tourism region. Can't be true, everyone has presented a super great, unique 100% waterproof concept - unfortunately unchecked, only accepted on request. An almost 4 - digit number in vacationers could now become quarantine cases.

It is still not clear - where did the virus come from? From the fish market in Wuhan, from a bat, from a Chinese laboratory? for God's sake who dares to say the latter? It doesn't work at all. Professors, experts and others who dared to address this topic were also disgraced and vilified in Germany. And now, secretly, the insights into it are growing. Sure, China vehemently denies that, what should they do? Allegedly, documents are said to have surfaced in the USA, which show explosive information in this regard. At that time experts had traveled to China to find the source. Now it is said that the result report at that time was probably incomplete and not transparent. The WHO did not get all the necessary data in China. One can probably call it a hindrance to the enlightenment.

Finally, let's come back to testing. As a rule, it works like this: You book an appointment, online or by phone, then go to the family doctor or test center, do the quick test and, with a waiting time, either get the result printed out or sent to your home by email. In any case, you have to leave your apartment, one or more hours can quickly pass by getting there, waiting and back.

It doesn't have to be anymore. There is now a website that offers you the quick test at home. Very easily. There you can buy so-called security seals in packs of 5 or 20, as well as a quick test that you can carry out yourself at home or even more. You book an appointment and then carry out the test via video telephony in front of the camera and seal it. After a certain waiting time, the test result will be displayed. You hold it in the camera, the trained staff on the other side recognizes, for example, that you are negative and now you get the certificate to be printed out by email. Isn't that convenient?

Unfortunately, there are a few catches. There are currently no free citizen tests, but you pay around 10 euros per test, plus the fastest one, which you buy yourself and the seal. You have to decide for yourself whether the test you have fabricated yourself is really meaningful. One thing is clear: for people who want to swap here, this system is ideal because you get the original file on the computer. And if nobody should know that I am positive, nobody will know. Of course, I won't explain how that works here.

No, there is still no end. Yesterday I got a video on NTV from the well-known cabaret artist Dr. Eckart von Hirschhausen, who is also a doctor. He gives information about vaccinations. Let's listen to what he has to say (excerpts): "There were vaccination opponents as early as 1850". Where did he get this information from, is it written down somewhere, I've never heard of it and haven't found anything on the Internet. And the gender problem definitely didn't exist back then. But go on. Vaccination is safe, meaningful and based on solidarity. On the subject of safety, I and many other citizens I have completely different information, so he should look at the statistics on side effects of the 3 vaccines, because he will find that the vaccines are leaders in terms of side effects, compared to all other vaccines ever produced. Whether vaccination makes sense is a case-by-case decision and depends e.g. B also depends on previous illnesses and the condition of the person. And that solidarity is by far not always great, I can say very briefly, keyword Jonestown massacre. Would you like more examples?

Continuing with the stories of Dr. v. Hirschhausen. As an explanation for the "harmlessness" of the vaccination, he cites the example that every body is constantly getting rid of foreign viruses and foreign RNA by breathing in, and the body would not care whether it came through the syringe or the air. He does not say that of course the air you breathe has a different composition than the syringe and that not all of the substances in the syringe are inhaled. Keyword proteins. That being said, I have never seen or heard of anyone dying from normal inhalation. When it comes to vaccines, there are hundreds of them. There must be a difference after all. He would have seen entire families queuing for hours to get vaccinations to get out of the pandemic. But Dr. v. Hirschhausen, you can't get through vaccination at all. Their comparison with polio vaccination is very weak: While you become immune with it for life, you have to renew your corona vaccination at least once a year. Where does someone get out of there? The climate crisis is much bigger and the pandemic a harbinger. Huh? What does corona from a laboratory have to do with climate change? These are completely new findings.

I would just like to say one thing about this: Dr. von Hirschhausen worked as a doctor until 1994, after which he devoted himself to cabaret. In any case, I could not discover anything about his own practice or practice as a resident doctor in his bio / curriculum vitae, which is published on his own homepage.
